New CEO for Leadtec

Leadtec Australia is pleased to announce the appointment of Angela Hariohoedojo to the role of CEO, commencing 1 July 2009.

Ms Hariohoedojo steps into the role made vacant by Scott Needham, who remains on the Board of Leadtec as a corporate director, and who will remain instrumental to the strategic direction and governance of the business.

“Angela is a strong business leader who will bring vitality and drive to the company going forward,” Mr Needham said. “As such, she will have complete authority in the day-to-day operations and running of the business.”

Currently Leadtec’s Development Manager, Ms Hariohoedojo has more than seven years experience working in software development, with a focus on business analysis, software project management and IT training.

She holds double bachelor degrees from Monash University in Computing (specialising in Software Engineering) and in Business, and a PRINCE2 Project Management qualification.

“I am greatly looking forward to assuming the position of CEO for Leadtec, especially given the company’s strong performance in recent months,” said Ms Hariohoedojo.

“At Leadtec, there is a clear understanding that if you work hard you can move quickly to higher levels of responsibility within the business. We make a point of rewarding success and encouraging our staff to take on new opportunities and challenges,” Mr Needham said.

In recent months, Mr Needham has been working on a number of business opportunities in the health sector, where he plans to either acquire or start a new company. He will be pursuing these opportunities vigourously from July.
